

Figure 4.12: Map showing presence of high viewer incidence

- Presence of sensitive visual receptors. The inhabitants of homesteads and residences represent visual receptors that should ideally not be exposed to visual impacts.

The presence of sensitive visual receptors is therefore considered to be a negative criterion and a 250m buffer area around all homesteads and residences are considered to be exclusion areas (weighting factor of -1).