

WHAT DID PORT ELIZABETHANS DO WITH THEIR TIME ON NELSON MANDELA DAY? HERE ARE SOME PICTURES

Port Elizabethans infused with the spirit of Madiba gathered around the city and country to give 67 minutes of their time for public service to honour former president Nelson Mandela on Monday July 18, Mandela Day.

Nelson Mandela Bay Tourism (NMBT) led an initiative to clean up inner city tourism route, the Donkin Heritage Trail, for 67 minutes on Monday. Getting in on the action were supporters of the initiative, Amy Shelper, Algoa FM's Viv Bozak, NMBT's Titus Chuene and Xolisa Tom, Jacques Nel from the nmb city project and Chuma Myoli (Mandela Bay Development Agency). State of the nation activation hits Schauder:

Natasha Peterson: GCIS, Nelson Mandela Bay

On 15 June 2011, the day before youth day government departments came out in their number to share information with the youth and the community at large on what government's plan of action is. The event coordinated by Government Communication and Information System (GCIS), with assistance of various departments and the ward councilor was intended to show community members the various ways in which government aims to assist them and create a better South Africa through reaching its five key priorities which are fighting crime, education, health, creating decent work and rural development and land reform

Although there were presentations for department of Correctional Services, Department of Health, Department of Economic Development and Environmental Affairs (DEDEA); the presentation from the Gelvandale SAPS really grabbed the attention of the community as they explained about the various types of drugs on the streets and how dangerous these drugs are. They also told of a 11 year old that was addicted to TIK and a 5 year old that was addicted to alcohol, these are clear indications that the drug and alcohol abuse in our communities are out of control but the police and government cannot fight it alone, the community have to stand together to fight the scourge of drugs in our streets.

Easy ways to spot if your child/ family member or friend is using drugs:

- People using TIK are hyper-active
- TIK suppresses their appetite and causes insomnia
- A rapid loss in weight
- Dilated pupils and rapid or delayed reactions and speech
- If the person no longer interacts with the family, he or she becomes withdrawn
- When items start going missing in the house, they usually sell these items for drugs
